

White Notley

Words and pictures by Laurie Page of the Public Rights of Way team at Essex County Council.

If you like a get-away-from-it-all ramble, this mid Essex Walk provides a quiet route from the little village of White Notley to Fairstead and back again.

Distance: 4.9 miles

Starting point: Vicarage Avenue, White Notley. CM8 1SB

How to get there: From the A12 at Witham, the village of White Notley can be reached via the B1018 between Witham and Braintree. Take the turning to White Notley Station just north of Cressing Temple Barns. Vicarage Avenue is a turning off Station Road in the village centre.

Map: O.S Explorer 183 Chelmsford and the Rodings

Refreshments: The Cross Keys pub in White Notley. There is also a very nice Tea Room at the Cressing Temple Barns

Tourist Information: Town Hall Centre, Market Square, Braintree, Essex CM7 3YG Tel: +44 (0)1376 550066 Email: braintree@eetb.info

Place of interest nearby: A mile to the north east are the Cressing Temple Barns. Owned by Essex County Council, these are medieval barns including the huge wheat barn, little changed since it was built in the 13th century. It has lifelike waxworks which tell the story of the wealthy Knights Templar, (the warrior monks) and the Knights Hospitallers who lived there. There is also a pleasant walled garden. The Walk

- 1. From the bottom of Vicarage Avenue, turn left at the road junction then turn immediately right at the next junction, past the Cross Keys pub. Go uphill passing the houses and at the end of the row on the left, opposite the village hall, take the bridleway along a wide dusty track. This bends left then right and out into open countryside. Where the track bends left again, go straight on, leaving the track and follow the hedge and ditch to your right. Continue along this path for some distance, into successive fields. Soon after you pass under the pylons, go right along a concrete track, passing a barn on the left. Soon after at the track junction, turn left.
- 2. The concrete path soon reverts to a grass track. Follow the hedge line. At the end of the field, cross a little planked bridge and bear right around the field edge to the lane. Turn left along the quiet lane. Continue for about half a mile passing under the pylons again. The road bends sharp left then right past some cottages. At the road junction go straight on unless you would like to turn left to visit the pretty tranquil church of Fairstead where there is a bench outside to admire the view and take a rest. Pass a footpath on the left and immediately after take the bridleway on the left which has a hard surface and is part of the Essex Way.
